FIRE RAZES BIG HOTEL AT MAGNOLIA

The "New Magnolia," Swell North Shore Hostelry, Destroyed by Mysterious Blaze.

The New Magnolia hotel at Magnolia, one of the most popular and best known hostleries on the North Shore, was today destroyed early this morning by a mysterious fire which was under way before it was discovered.

In spite of frantic efforts by the fire department the building was burned to the ground. The loss is estimated at $150,000, about half covered by insurance.

The Columbia hotel, formerly the North Shore Club, owned by Mrs. Francis Shearn, was damaged by flying sparks, but was saved after a hard fight by the firemen.

The Ocean Side hotel, one of the big hotels on the North Shore, was saved only by the fact that the fire was blowing in the opposite direction. It is scarcely more than twenty feet from the site of the destroyed hotel.

The fire was discovered at 6:25 o'clock this morning by a fireman employed by Mrs. E. C. Curry of Pittsford, Pa. When he first noticed the flames they were in the kitchen. The hotel was closed almost immediately and about half an hour later the building, so far as the proprietor of the hotel, Dr. George H. and wife of Haverhill, knew, was a mass of smoking ruins.

It is believed that the fire was started through the summer kitchen and spread to the main building. The cause of the fire is being investigated by the fire department.

FIND CHARGE OF OIL TRUST IS GROUNDLESS

CHICAGO, Oct. 5.—The special grand jury reported to Judge Landis that it had been unable to substantiate the charge made in the Standard Oil Company's petition that other shippers in the Chicago oil market had violated the Elkins law.

The jury asked to be excused from further service, and with a few words of explanation Judge Landis concluded the case. No comment was made by Judge Landis on the grand jury's report, but it was apparent that it was a matter of satisfaction to him. Incidentally this report reversed up the score between the court and Attorney General.

In his argument that the verdict against the Standard Oil Company of Indiana be set aside the attorney questioned the judge, and so in it is a way that made the jury's verdict a "stuffed indictment" which would be thrown out.

TAFT NOTIFIES JAPAN COOLIES MUST STAY OUT

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5.—Acting under instructions from the President, it is said, the Japanese government of the United States purpose to exclude Japanese laborers from this country. He urged that the best way to avoid friction would be for the Japanese government to agree to an exclusion treaty, but declared that, if this course was not possible, the United States would be forced to pass a law which would effectively prevent the landing of the coolies.

LONGFELLOW STATUE READY TO BE CAST

NEW YORK, Oct. 5.—Ready for casting in bronze next week, the statue statue of Henry W. Longfellow rests in the studio of the sculptor, William Couper, at No. 207 East Seventeenth street. It is expected that by next Spring the memorial statue will be ready for unveiling in Washington, D. C.

WHITNEY MEN BOLT

Hold "Rump" Convention and Name Whitney as Candidate for Governor—Injunction Granted to Whitneyites, but Bartlett Forces Were Too Quick—Police Guard Hall—General Named by the "Regulars."

(BULLETIN.)

SPRINGFIELD, Oct. 5.—GENERAL CHARLES W. BARTLETT WAS NOMINATED BY THE REGULAR DEMOCRATIC CONVENTION SHORTLY AFTER THE BOLTERS HAD NOMINATED HENRY M. WHITNEY. THE NOMINATION WAS BY ACCLAMATION.

Special to the Boston American.

SPRINGFIELD, Oct. 5.—While Judge H. A. King was hearing the application for an injunction to prevent the seating of about fifty delegates from towns where no caucuses were held, the Bartlett men stole the Democratic convention here to-day.

Judge King granted the injunction prayed for by the attorneys for Henry M. Whitney. After Chairman John P. Feeney had opened the convention, those Whitney men who had succeeded in securing admission to the theatre bolted.

Conry Heads Bolters

Immediately Ex-Congressman Joseph A. Conry went to the rear of the hall where he rallied the Whitney supporters.

Conry was made chairman of the "rump" convention. This convention placed Henry M. Whitney in nomination for Governor and named a full State ticket.

Daniel J. Kelley, presiding on the stage of the theatre, directed the work of the convention as though there was no dispute about his authority to do so.

The convention was in an uproar.

At the time that the convention was called to order there were between 200 and 300 Whitney men outside who were unable to secure admittance.

Uproar Over Kiley.

Inside the hall there were cheers, hisses, and the blowing of horns when Daniel J. Kelley was made chairman of the convention and proceeded to organize.

Thirty-five police officers inside the theatre had all they could do to maintain any order.

Bartlett men were the first to enter. They secured the first ten rows of the orchestra. Alakes were blocked by large, strong-armed men from Boston.

JUDGE GRANTS INJUNCTION. Judge H. A. King granted the injunction applied for by the Whitney men at the theatre of the police. Mr. Kelley gave the order. The plaintiffs named in the application were Andrew J. Peters and Daniel F. Buckley, both of Boston, and John P. Feeney, chairman of the State Committee, John A. Condit, secretary of the State Committee, Daniel J. Kelley, chairman of the Executive Committee, all of whom were officers of the Democratic State Committee and all the officers of the convention.

KILEY MAN OF THE HOUR. It can be seen very early that Daniel J. Kelley was the man of the hour. He not only headed the Whitney forces, but he also headed the Conry forces. The manager, appointed by the Whitney supporters, said that the only man he could recognize was Mr. Kelley.

To the Ward 8 men near the police station, Kelley was the only man who could recognize the police.

GUILD RENOMINATED BY THE REPUBLICANS

CONVENTION AT SYMPHONY HALL NAME HIM BY ACCLAMATION—LODGE SPEAKS.

Governor Curtis Guild, Jr., was re-nominated by acclamation at noon to-day at the Republican State Convention in Symphony Hall.

United States Senator Henry Cabot Lodge to-day, in accepting the permanent chairmanship of the Republican State Convention in Symphony Hall, made a stirring speech in which he attacked Mayor Fitzgerald and the present Democratic city administration of Boston.

Senator Lodge declared that the one great and only issue in this campaign is the proposed merger of the Boston Mayor and the New York, New Haven & Hartford.

Of the merger, Senator Lodge said: "The merger is the one great business and political question now before this State and in this country before us. It is the one question which will make or unmake the city of Boston."

"I am not prepared to say whether or not the merger will be a good thing or not, but I do say that I want the people and the railroad companies to be heard in this question. It is in the best interest of the community."

Senator Lodge said of Mayor Fitzgerald: "I regard him as a criminal, against the laws of the city of Boston, and I regard him as a criminal against the laws of the city of Boston. He has made the city of Boston a laughing stock and a disgrace to the city of Boston."

LAUNCH BOW FOR WHITE STAR LINER. BELFAST, Oct. 5.—A new bow, 200 feet long, with a curved bridge and steel masts, is to be joined to the other portion of the White Star liner, Mauretania, was launched to-day. The bow will be towed to Southampton and the two parts joined. The ship was on King Rock near St. Leonard March 17, last. While the ship was on the rocks the forward portion of the ship broke away and slid into deep water.

WARNED BY HEAVEN. CAPTAIN QUILTS SE. NEW YORK, Oct. 5.—Captain August Richter, known to thousands of Americans even travelers, has given up his command of the North German Lloyd steamer Kronprinz Wilhelm and quits the sea forever because, according to his friends, he was warned by heaven through the sinking of his ship's collision with an iceberg in the Atlantic.

This scene on Hayward Place was duplicated every day this week during the unloading of the Henderson Stocks from Worcester.

The sketch illustrates the enormous task of unloading over 500 mammoth cases of merchandise from the Henderson store, and gives some idea of the magnitude of the sale beginning Monday. This event will positively be the most sensational that has ever taken place in the history of Boston, or the New England States, as it is the first time on record that a new store was bought out in its entirety and sold at 50 cents on the dollar.

No—Public School Children WILL NOT BE WHIPPED

Teachers Will Continue to Use Their Belts Rather Than Their Flails as Educational Weapons

Once more there is discussion of the old question, "Shall we beat the children in the public schools?" Teachers have been asked to send in their opinions as to the desirability of adding the stick to other implements of education.

We believe that the majority of intelligent public school teachers will agree that in a civilized country only a fool or an animal would try to inculcate knowledge with the aid of physical brutality.

It would be rather ridiculous if we would permit a grown man to beat a child one-fourth his size when we forbid whipping sailors in the navy, or even the lowest criminals in our jails.

If you forbid a jailer to strike a burglar or a murderer, are you going to allow grown men to beat defenceless children?

If you arrest a man for beating a horse in the street, where all the world can see and protest, are you going to allow children to be beaten in private?

The school teachers as a body should declare themselves against a revival of the fat and ferule as educational weapons.

Classes that are too big should be made smaller. Special classes, conducted by men of special ability, should be arranged for the so-called "incurable" boys. Every educator knows that the right kind of teacher can manage the "incurable" boy. Our educational system should show its intelligence by bringing the "incurable" boys and the ablest teachers together.

Parents should encourage in their children respectful treatment of teachers. The parent who sends an ill-mannered child to school should be admonished and made to feel responsible.

But parents don't want their children beaten, and on behalf of the fathers and mothers who support the schools we wish to say that the public school children will not be beaten. The teacher who would not allow a stranger to beat his dog can hardly ask that parents allow a stranger to beat their child.

We do not believe that any body of educators will be foolish enough to revive physical punishment in schools. But, whatever the educators may do, we wish to state that this newspaper will be prepared to retain lawyers to prosecute criminally for assault and battery any teacher that can be convicted of striking a child. We shall do what we can to establish the fact that the brutality that civilization has abolished on warships, in prisons and in stables is not to be revived as a feature of public education.

The mission of the public schools is to make of children good men and women, hating brutality. They should not have an example of the worst kind of brutality set before them in schools.

Making Capital Out of the Crime of Disloyalty

Copyright, 1907, by American-Journal-Examiner

Mr. Pulitzer's "patriotism" is again to the fore. Ever since he was court-martialed in the army it has been a distinguishing trait. During the Spanish war it exhibited itself in his inspiring declaration that war was merely a matter of money, and in his later famous and ever infamous attack upon our fighters at the front, issued in the security of his own apartment in New York, and probably from under the bed.

His attempt to pacify public sentiment by erecting a monument, for which others were to pay, to the men that he, himself, without assistance, had maligned, is regarded as proof by admiring friends that his effrontery had not deserted him even though his loyalty and decency had.

Now comes the departure of our fleet to the Pacific, a necessary measure which every patriotic American should approve and sustain—a measure assuredly essential to the maintenance of our dignity as a nation, and possibly essential to the protection of our citizens and the preservation of our territory.

It is difficult to conceive that any American citizen would seek to make capital, political or personal, out of a critical situation of such national importance; but again the voice that called all war a matter of money and characterized our soldiers as cowards rings out from under the bed in an attempt to embarrass the President in the patriotic discharge of the highest duty of his office.

The other day the New York World quoted the Sun in the following paragraph:

THE CRIME OF JINGOISM

The New York Sun, a newspaper which has long had exceptionally close relations with the State Department, in an editorial yesterday said:

"Those who apparently have the right to expect authoritative explanations of the object of transferring the navy to the Western ocean persist in saying that it is for justice. We regret to say that we share the Japanese belief that the explanation is false.

The navy is going to the Pacific for war with Japan, and Japan recognizes the fact and is energetically preparing for it. Once the operation of transferring our ships to Pacific waters has been accomplished war is inevitable.

It is an insane project.

Well-informed people do not recognize any exceptionally close relations of the Sun with the State Department, but they do appreciate the peculiarly close relations of the Sun with Wall Street—an association which they have every reason to suspect the World shares.

In editorial comment on the Sun's statement, the World went on to say:

Mr. Roosevelt's battening expedition to the Pacific is bad policy, because it may lead to real complications. The fact that it could elicit such an amazing prediction of war as the Sun makes is proof of its disarming and demoralizing influence. It excites suspicion, because it is pure jingoism. American and Japanese jingoes alike will use it to exaggerate causes for 'ill feeling. To provoke war talk, as Mr. Roosevelt is doing, is to create war sentiment.

There is no occasion for war and no need for the prediction of war in the peaceful expansion of our navy along our own coast.

There is no talk of America desiring war except by the Wall Street interests that are hostile to the President.

There is no attempt to provoke war except by newspapers like the Sun, which directly represents the Morgan interests, and the World, which serves, as far as tolerated, the lately indicted Vanderbilt interests.

Let us hope that we will be spared war, but let us at least have the intelligence to make sure that if war is forced upon us we will be prepared.

And let us further hope that in any event the government will not be influenced or embarrassed by the unpatriotic differences of a man who, as far as his limited opportunities have allowed him, has been a hindrance in one war and a disgrace in another.

Cupid's Lullaby

By Eliza Wheeler Wilcox

(In Charles M. Brown's Musical Series, "The Beauty Trust")

HE moon was Cupid's cradle When this old world was new;

The spots we see I think must be Worn there by Venus's hair.

Who rocked and sang a lullaby To little Cupid in the sky.

Alas for loving maidens! Alas for hearts of men!

That naughty boy, our pain and joy, Has never slept since then;

When his cradle swings on high, This requiem could hover nigh.

Shaking Up the Forces

By Wex Jones

HE ride entered for army officers having prizes so successful, in the opinion of all but the fat majors and colonels, President Roosevelt, has ordered all navy captains and admirals to swim ashore from their ships or lose their jobs.

In his order President Roosevelt says that in time of war a ship might be sunk by the enemy, in which case officers who could not swim would be incapable of continuing the fight, and would in addition imperil their crews by putting down so much of the ocean.

Officers properly qualified could on the other hand swim to the enemy's ships and cause holes in them, thereby causing them to sink rapidly.

In accordance with the order all captains and admirals in the fleet going through the Straits of Magellan will five overboard and swim through the straits ahead of the squadron, at the strain showing their ability to command a ship in wartime and acting pilots to the fleet by hitting submerged reefs with their knees.

All Secretaries will also be put through a course of exercise. Each of them will be required to write out a Presidential speech, legible and underlining the parts best adapted to leakage. In addition, each Secretary will be required to do a specialty. Secretaries of State will be required to do two acres of hickories, besides pruning a duck pond.

Secretary Taft will be asked to ride fifty miles, the horses being paid for by the Government.

Secretary Root will be asked to boost Wall Street in a speech in Portuguese.

Secretary Cortelyou will be required to collect half a million in half a day. Secretary Meritt's task will be to play the spinaker in a heavy gale and box the compass twenty rounds for points.

Supreme Court judges will be tried on declaring a given law unconstitutional.

Foreign Ambassadors will be tried out on the White House tennis courts. By this means it is hoped that all departments of the Government and the services will be kept up to the standard set by the leader.

KENNETT HARRIS

The Parting Thrust—"It Really Isn't SUCH a Bad Gown," Said the Girl in the Fall Hat

By Kennett Harris

Copyright, 1907, by American-Journal-Examiner

HE girl in the blue frock plucked at the bottom of the blue skirt. "You've repined about this," she said.

"Mabel, you look at that skirt and tell me if you don't think it harks up a little more in front."

"Then you don't think it's a good fit?" asked the girl in the blue frock, smiling herself. "You don't like it?"

"Oh, I think it's lovely," replied the black-eyed girl, enthusiastically. "Only you told me to tell you what I honestly thought, you know. I'm always so particular myself—frilly, I guess. But, tell me, dear, why did you get that shade of blue?"

"I thought you said that you liked that shade."

"Well, don't like it. But—oh, it doesn't look so bad on you. It won't be night, anyway. But it is a trying shade. There's no doubt of it. One has always a suspicion of a complexion to have it. That sounds awful, doesn't it? As if I didn't think that you had a perfect complexion. I didn't mean it in that way. I spoke without thinking. But you know it is trying."

"Hateful Thing!"

"Let me tell you what you can do. No, I don't know what you can do. That or not. You'd have to have the whole waist precisely made over, and I don't suppose you'd want to do that. Stand up again for a moment. Well, I think, on the whole, she did pretty well. You have the same figure in the world to it, you know."

"Of course, I know it doesn't compare with your dress," said the girl in the blue frock. "I never could have the patience to be so fastidiously dainty to wear. Besides, I don't like Turkish baths and things. Life wouldn't be so pleasant. Little dresses I ever saw. Now I really must go. I'll never get those calls made."

When the girl with the black eyes and the girl in the blue dress slipped it off, and dropped it over the side of the hall and out of the doorway, her chin in her palms.

"Hateful thing!" she ejaculated. Musing the blue frock?

It belongs to human nature to hate those you have injured. TACITUS.
